Three Bay rapes still under investigation

No need for panic: Favre

BY AMY PICKICH

Three unsolved rapes in Bay St. Louis have been a topic of conversation around town recently, as well as the subject of a Dec. 17 front page article in The Times-Picayune.

The article portrayed the town as a "town living in fear," but Mayor Eddie Favre said, "of course there is a tremendous amount of concern, but there is no need for a total panic."

"If anything people are a lot more concerned," Favre said.

He said the police are putting their every effort into the case.

Bay St. Louis police have said they believe the same man is responsible for the three rapes that occurred between 4 and 5 a.m., Oct. 3, Oct. 21 and Nov. 20. The suspect is described as a medium build black male, about 5'9" tall.

According to Bay Detective Tom Burleson, the article's report of a fourth rape was not confirmed, nor was the incident related to the other three.

Burleson said, contrary to the New Orleans article, a number of suspects are being investigated, but nothing is concrete.

He said he does not encourage everyone to go out and buy a gun, but to continue to take the necessary precautions. He said to report any suspicious activity for the police to investigate.

According to Burleson, local agencies, such as the Hancock County Task Force, are helping with the investigation.

"We are all investigating and working on it," Burleson said.

$2 mil. sewer project discussed for Kiln area

Hearing draws comments, pro & con

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Plans for a $2 million sewer system in the Kiln were aired last week for residents of the northern Hancock County area.

Residents of the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District heard plans for a system that officials hope will serve 400 to 500 residences initially. Options for three different systems -- and ways to pay for the major project -- were aired at a public hearing sponsored by district officials last Tuesday.

Engineers are recommending a pressurized collection system financed with a $1 million grant and $1 million loan.

But there are some significant hurdles to cross before the project goes forward.

CUSTOMER COST

Michael D. Haas Sr., the district's attorney, said Friday the district board wants to keep the system's cost at no more than $25 to $30 per month, per customer.

Even that, he said, will be difficult for some residents of the rural district to pay.

Haas said officials hope to put together a grant and loan package from federal and/or state agency sources to finance the project.

Staff members of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission are studying which agencies have the best programs available for the project.

AUTHORITY QUESTIONED

Meanwhile, there's a legal question whether the Kiln district has the authority to get into the sewer business. Haas said some believe that a state law enacted last year says that only one public agency within a county can offer sewer service.

He noted that three agencies within Hancock County already are in the sewer business, including the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, and the Waveland Regional Wastewater District.

If the law is as restrictive as some think, he said, the Kiln may fit into a grandfather exemption clause. Or, he added, a local bill could be passed to enable the Kiln project.

Haas said the district's board has been working closely with the county board of supervisors and planners "to put together a project we can all be proud of."

Initial study of the sewer possibilities began in May 1989, he said, leading to the initial public presentation last week.

He said while the "general consensus" at the public hearing favored the project, there were opponents who said they can't afford any additional monthly costs.

Haas said the project would affect only the more populated

Rockwell dedicates Hancock field office

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Rockwell International's Hancock County field office at Diamondhead was dedicated and a reception held for area business and civic leaders Wednesday.

R.D. Paster, president of Rocketdyne Division of Rockwell International, located in Canoga Park, Calif., was principal speaker.

United States Congressman Gene Taylor was special guest.

Rockwell International will be joined by Raytheon Service Company, Computer Systems Technology, Technical Enterprises, Inc. and Peat-Marwick, to compete for a test and technical services contract at Stennis Space Center.

Terms of the contract call for the companies to support ground testing of large space propulsion systems; research, development in propulsion test technology and environmental system sciences and commercial applications of remote sensing technologies.

The team selected will also provide technical services to NASA and other agencies and contractors.

Rowe Crowder, program manager designate, introduced officials from the support companies.

The companies and representatives were, Raytheon

Students collect 8 tons in phone book recycling drive

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Hancock County school children collected almost 8 tons of used telephone directories in the recent recycling drive sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Students, principals and teachers from 11 participating schools were recognized at the last meeting of the board of supervisors for their efforts.

"We appreciate the efforts of all the teachers and students in helping collect the telephone directories, as it saves numerous trees which can be used by future generations," said Ellis Cuevas, chairman of the Chamber's beautification committee.

Officials said some 133 trees will be spared the axe, thanks to the children's efforts. In addition, the recycling program paid the participating schools a total of $1,170 in awards.

REFLECTIONS
ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

How secular is Christmas?

Hillary Rodham Clinton clung somewhat fearfully and precariously to the boom of the cherry picker as she was maneuvered into position next to the top of the gigantic White House Christmas tree.

A nation watched with rapt attention as this annual hit of holiday news paraded before the grinding TV cameras. Yes, this was clearly what the people of the United States of America looked forward to just before Christmas.

But what has happened to the traditional separation of church and state? Surely, this public act before national TV cameras flew in the face of that hallowed political/religious dichotomy. Then why was there not public outcry?

On the other hand, why was there an uproarious hue and cry when a school authority in Mississippi allowed students to pray over the public address system?

The name of God is not welcome in its pure, unadulterated form in non-private schools. It is fully tolerated in its profane form, in obscenities and in various forms of cursing and wishing evil on others. Is that sensible?

While one would perhaps be disciplined for using obscene language or profanity over a school's public address system, that same person might be demoted for doing something unconstitutional if the name of God were invoked in prayer.

God is taboo, but condoms are being hawked and distributed without scruple or consequence in more and more high schools, and the practice is considered constitutional. It is only God, not condoms and cursing, who is unconstitutional.

How, then, explain Mrs. Clinton's ceremonious high ride on the festive cherry picker? At the least, a nation which accepts this so blithely as news, yet swallows the suppression of God in our schools is sick with religious schizophrenia.

It gets worse. The same Supreme Court justices who adhere to separation of church and state begin their reign in the Supreme Court by placing their hand on a Bible and swearing in the name of God to be true to their trust.

So does every incoming president, governor, representative, senator, officer and anyone anywhere who will be put in charge of any service of note in any community.

Where, then, is the separation of church and state in all these cases? Why this use of the Bible and the name of God?

"It is merely a secular ceremony," jurist purists say.

Is that all it is? Can the esteemed jurists convince an adoring America that the First Lady, astride the cherry picker believes within herself that all she is doing is going through the sterile motions of a secular exercise?

Can they convince us further that U.S. presidents from time immemorial who have bowed their heads humbly on Thanksgiving Day did so without religious fervor and with nothing more than a twinge of emotion rising from a vapid ceremony?

We have to ask the same question concerning the National Day of Prayer and about such things as the inscription on your legal tender, "In God We Trust," all of which came about at the behest of presidents and/or Congress.

Congress itself does not open its sessions without a solemn invocation. The U.S. Supreme Court et al are fooling themselves about Christmas being secular. Merry Christmas!

Investigation continues in accident causing fatality

BY JANET MCQUEEN

An investigation continues in a Wednesday accident which claimed the life of Waveland resident Roseanne Netto, 34.

According to Waveland Police Chief James Varnell, Netto was a passenger in a car driven by her sister, Rebecca Ladner of Kiln. Ladner was heading west on U.S. 90 when she ran a red light at McLaurin Street.

"A van carrying eight people broadsided the car," said Varnell. None of the eight had to be taken to the hospital, he noted.

Neither woman was wearing a seatbelt. Ladner was treated at Hancock Medical Center and transferred to Garden Park Community Hospital.

No charges have been filed at this time.

Netto was the 59th traffic fatality on the Coast this year.

Correction

In a story printed Thursday, December 16, 1993, about the December 7 meeting of the Bay-Waveland School Board meeting, a personnel change was incorrectly listed.

Debbie Anderson, Gill Ward and Bridget Vincent did not resign. Anderson and Ward were changed from substitute to regular bus drivers. Bridget Vincent was changed from regular to substitute bus driver.

Services Company, Pat Roddy, president, and Travis Hensley; Computer Systems Technology, Inc., Bobby Bradley, president; Technical Enterprises, Inc., Bill Tate, president, and Bennie H. Williams; and Peat-Marwick, William Schick, representative.

Taylor was introduced by Paster, who he said was a strong supporter of the space station both this and last year.

Taylor said, "The key is to diversify our economy, especially with the work at the technical laboratories. We need to take the wisdom and knowledge (at Stennis Space Center) and share this with the Mississippi people."

David Treutel, president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, and Jon Ritten, president of the Diamondhead Business and Professional Association, welcomed guests to the new Rockwell field office. The two groups co-sponsored the event.

Paster's remarks included, "For three decades plus here, Rockwell has been deeply involved with the Gulf Coast, going way back to the Apollo Days."

"Right now, there are some 300 people working here that wear Rockwell badges. They are part of a partnership, a partnership that's been forged with the people of the Gulf Coast Community."

"We're proud of that long association and what's been accomplished, but we're even more excited about the work that lies ahead."

"There's no question that the history of the John C. Stennis Space Center is a story like no other."

"When you talk about the conquest of space in the 20th century, you simply have to give major credit to Stennis."

"NASA's vision for the future is to continue to expand the frontiers of space exploration."

"Stennis Space Center is committed to this vision through its role as the national center of excellence for propulsion testing operations, and through its other missions of remote sensing technologies."

"Stennis will also continue as host center for other governmental agencies, such as the Naval Research Laboratory and the Naval Oceanographic Command.

"We, Rockwell, Raytheon, Computer Systems Technology, Technical Enterprise, Inc., and Peat-Marwick intend to be a part of that expanding role."

"Eleven days ago, Rocketdyne was honored to have President Clinton as a guest at our Conoga Park facilities. The President spent the major part of a day with us, sharing his views and listening to ours. And one of the themes that recurred throughout the day was continuation of the space program."

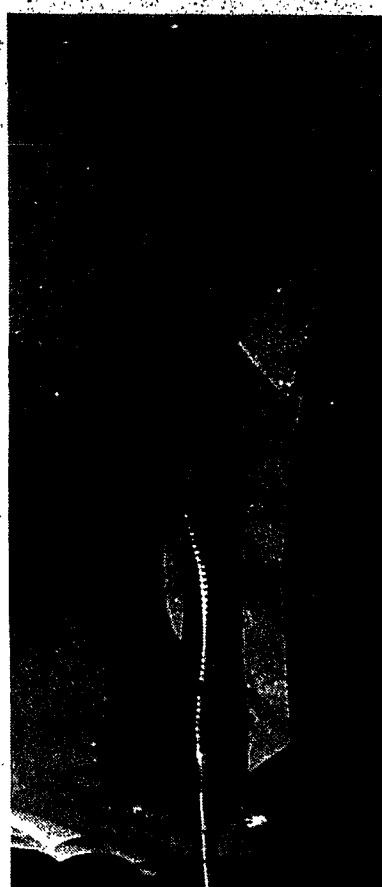

"It was very reassuring and suggested real commitment to space. And again, that continuation, will include the crucial work done here, and a continuation, we hope, of our partnership with the people of the Gulf Coast."

Paster also presented $500 to the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's beautification committee.

Bay man charged in Gulfport casino robbery

BY AMY PICKICH

A Bay St. Louis man was one of the four men arrested for robbing the Grand Casino in Gulfport shortly after 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Carl B. Roger, 31, of 723 Old Spanish Trail, was charged with armed robbery, as was Reginald Terrell Evans, 20, of Moss Point and Matthew Alton Williams III, 30, of Gautier.

Gulfport Police Detective Whitney Carvin said three males wearing ski masks and carrying guns robbed the Grand Casino in a matter of seconds.

A fourth man was charged with being an accessory to armed robbery after the fact.

According to Carvin, a casino security guard followed the vehicle, putting police in the right direction. He said within six to seven hours police arrested the three at a Gulfport residence and recovered the stolen money. The amount stolen was not released.

Carvin said no one was injured in the incident.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department assisted in the investigation.

All four were in the Harrison County jail on $100,000 bond each.

area of the 21-square mile water district initially, serving the same approximate population already connected to the public water system.

PROJECT PRAISED

Sue Chamberlain of the planning commission said the proposed project is the result of a "really forward-thinking board," which is concerned about future problems in the Kiln area.

The proposal is being initiated, she said, not because a significant sewer problem exists but to stave off problems that will come with continued development. Haas said the district is one of the fastest-growing areas of the county.

As it stands, state health officials won't issue permits for building in areas of the district where the soil won't pass percolation tests. That means the soil won't support a septic tank system.

Chamberlain said as federal officials tighten regulations in the future, development in the area will become even more restricted.

While some residents at the public hearing were openly concerned about paying a sewer service fee, she said, they also recognized the need to protect the environment for the future. "People were heated, but they listened," said Chamberlain.

Haas said if a grant and loan package for the project can be found that will keep cost to residents within a reasonable range, another public hearing will be called.

Officials present at the first hearing included the board members: Cleveland Wyatt, C.J. Mauffray, Royce Shiyon, Glen Stockstill and Carl Olsen.

Also on hand were State Sen. William A. Johnson Jr. and State Rep. Harry L. Frierson Jr.; and two members of the county board of supervisors, Michael Ladner and Wilmer Seymour.

Chamberlain said officials indicated they may call for a non-binding referendum to gauge public sentiment before proceeding with the project.

AUTO BURGLARY

Bay St. Louis Police Department Detective Tom Burleson said Jamie Jean Anderson, 27, 238 Seal Ave., Pass Christian, was arrested for the burglary of an auto at Casino Magic's RV parking lot on December 15.

The arresting officers were Bay Patrolmen Jim Martin and Clifton Malley.

Anderson is lodged in the Hancock Criminal Justice Facility in lieu of a $5,000 bond, said Burleson, who is in charge of the case.

Recycle

Board of supervisors president Michael Ladner said the county saved 26.3 cubic yards of valuable landfill space in the children's recycling effort. Landfill, he said, is "something that we are definitely limited in."

"Environmental and resource conservation as well as pollution control are very important issues facing the world today, and it is extremely important that we all do our part to control these areas," Ladner told the students.

He said the program also helped create an environmental awareness in the young people who participated.

This was the first year in which schools participated in the program. Last year, the program relied solely on citizens taking their old phone books to a bin at the Chamber office.

Public school participating this year included: Hancock North Elementary, Bay Middle, Charles B. Murphy, Bay High, North Bay Elementary and Waveland Elementary.

Private schools in the program included: St. Clare Elementary, Bay Catholic School, Coast Episcopal, Our Lady Academy, and Diamondhead Academy. Officials said the students collected a total of 6,377 books.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Have you ever driven on a narrow street and approached high school students walking down the middle of a road and have them divide on each side?

This has happened to me twice during the past week. It seems high school students would be bright enough and even taught about the importance of safety and to act accordingly.

To begin with, it is illegal to walk down the middle of a street.

And I have always wondered why they do not all move to the same side of the road, instead of splitting up. If I am not mistaken, the correct way to walk or ride a bike is with the traffic.

I know I have also seen students on bicycles divide the same way as the recent walkers I am talking about.

Please parents, urge your children, no matter the age, the importance of safety. Teach them the proper way to ride or walk on our streets. You could help them from being hurt or even possibly killed.

This is very important, as all youngsters should never be left to walk or ride a bicycle on our streets without proper training.

Rewards were reaped from several schools in the county this past week for participation in the telephone book recycling in Hancock County.

The drive, conducted along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, included private enterprise putting up cash money to be distributed to participating schools.

The drive was co-sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's beautification committee along with South Central Bell, Harrison County beautification committee, Ace Data Storage and the Ocean Springs Chamber.

Principals from the county's schools received their share of the awards Tuesday at the Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting.

The schools and amounts received were as follows: Hancock North Central Elementary, $62; Bay Middle School, $156; Charles B. Murphy, $82; Bay High, $46; North Bay Elementary, $27; and Waveland Elementary, $116.

Private schools were St. Clare Elementary, $203; Bay Catholic, $222; Coast Episcopal, $58; Our Lady Academy, $174; and Diamondhead Academy, $20.

I would like to thank each school's principal and students for their participation in the telephone book recycling.

The 7.7 tons of telephone directories saved some 133 trees.

This is not to mention the 26.3 cubic yards of valuable landfill space saved, too.

Thanks again.

We do not need a Supreme Court of Health

Everyone shares the goals of controlling health care costs, ensuring a worker's ability to maintain insurance despite changing jobs, and expanding access to quality care. President Clinton is right in focusing attention on concerns about health care security, but he is wrong in insisting that a government-run health care plan is the only means of achieving that security.

His 1,342-page plan is a massive top-down, bureaucratic system that would doggedly govern almost every aspect of the delivery and financing of health care for Americans.

First, the Clinton plan creates a new, presidentially appointed agency to determine the price of health insurance premiums, approve new benefits for inclusion in any government standardized health care plan, and enforce public and private spending limitations at the national and state level.

Second, his plan creates a new state-based system of health insurance cooperatives that will in effect become the enforcers of federal health policy. Every American will be required to obtain health insurance through these health alliances or through similar corporate-sponsored plans.

Third, his plan details exactly what medical services are to be included in a standardized government health benefits package.

Fourth, the President's plan mandates that every employer participate in the financing of health care reform. Such mandates translate into higher prices for consumers for goods and services in the general economy or reduced compensation for employees.

Depending on a firm's size and resources, these increased costs of doing business will translate directly into lower wages or job loss. The President's own Council of Economic Advisers Chairman estimates that the job loss from this employer mandate would be roughly 600,000 jobs.

Finally, while the President says he does not favor price controls, his plan is full of them. The central cost control in the Clinton plan is not competition, but a rigid system of spending caps on public and private health insurance spending, plus fee controls for doctors in fee-for-service plans.

I have no doubt that these government controls will be expensive and will expand. There will be less freedom for doctors and patients.

Taxes will grow sharply, or care will be cut because the President is proposing an entitlement program which will inevitably expand in budget and regulatory control. When Medicaid was enacted in 1965, no one predicted the cost explosions in that public program. When the federal government in 1966 projected the cost of the new Medicare hospital program over the next five years, the actual cost turned out to be double the projection.

The ink was not even dry on the President's health care legislation last month before The Washington Post reported that health care insurance premiums would rise up to 53 percent higher than estimated by the White House.

Most Mississippians tell me they are satisfied with the quality of medical services they receive but are concerned that they could lose their benefits because of rising costs or a job change.

There are real problems looking for practical solutions, not the Clinton multi-layered bureaucratic social experiment which in effect creates a great Supreme Court of Health.

Next year Congress should begin the health care reform debate from the standpoint that America has the best health care system in the world, and we should do nothing to undermine it.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

Looking ahead at the 1994 Legislative Session

The Mississippi Legislature opens its 1994 session in January with the state's financial outlook showing vast improvement over recent years and a mountain of major issues awaiting debate, ranging from school violence to bridge repairs to proposed tax cuts.

The 90-day session will convene at noon on Tuesday, Jan. 4, and is scheduled to end April 3 unless an extension becomes necessary. It will be the third regular session of the 1992-96 term, and the second regular session since the special court-ordered legislative elections of 1992.

Scores of bills already have been prefiled. Overall, more than 3,000 bills and resolutions are likely to be introduced in the House and Senate before the closing gavel. Top issues are expected to include economic development, education, health care, crime prevention, highways and bridges, and juvenile violence. Legislation is certain to be offered dealing with such emotional topics as car tags, tax cuts, compulsory auto insurance, school prayer, gun possession by juveniles, raising the minimum drivers' age from 15 to 16, and reducing the size of the House and Senate.

Development of a state budget for Fiscal Year 1995, starting on July 1, 1994, will be among the biggest chores confronting the Legislature. More specifically, we have the responsibility of deciding what to do regarding several million dollars in additional General Fund revenues expected to be available.

The projected increase could be used to provide extra money for priority needs in such areas as education, health care, and law enforcement; to implement new programs; to give some relief to taxpayers, or a combination of all of these alternatives.

The Joint Legislative Budget Committee has recommended General Fund expenditures totaling $2,257 billion for the coming year, an increase of $119.6 million over current appropriations. The recommendations include $47.6 million in non-recurring costs for capital improvement projects ($43 million), repair and renovation work ($15 million) and preplanning ($624,000).

The Budget Committee also proposed a 10 percent cut in tuition for Mississippi students at the state's universities, to be offset by a $9.4 million boost in general support for the institutions. The universities would get a total increase of $12 million in General Fund money while the community colleges would receive a $5.7 million increase.

The largest single outlay of $856.3 million would go to the Minimum Education Program, along with $56 million in special funds. Almost $157 million in non-allocated funds would be set aside under Budget Committee proposals for legislative discretion and could be used for any number of things if lawmakers so determine, including state income tax reductions, local bridge repairs, assistance to cities and counties for infrastructure needs, teacher pay raises, or tax refunds to federal retirees.

The state's encouraging financial outlook follows a number of innovations in budgeting procedures adopted by the Legislature, and a dramatic upswing in state revenues. Financial specialists are projecting continued moderate growth in the state's economy but anticipate a slowing trend compared to the past several months. There is some concern that cutbacks in defense spending may affect Mississippi's rate of economic growth, and that casino-related revenues may taper off as competing casinos come on line in other states.

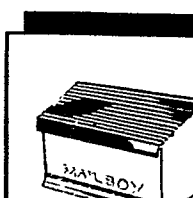

Gaming activities have already had a big impact on the state's economy and local economy in Hancock County and other areas where casinos are located. The Budget Committee has conservatively estimated that gaming revenues will total around $65 million in the coming year. The spin-off from gaming also plays an important role. In Hancock County, for example, retail sales increased by 65 percent from September 1992 to September 1993, while employment jumped by more than 4 percent for the same months.

The 1994 session is expected to see numerous bills aimed at getting a firmer grasp on the related problems of crime, drug abuse, and juvenile violence. Several measures also will be introduced dealing with the courts and state's crowded correctional facilities. In the House, subcommittees have been working on the thorny problems of redrawing circuit and chancery court districts and uniform sentencing guidelines.

In addition, legislators are expected to be asked to look at authorizing a local-option sales tax for cities and counties; doing away with the elective offices of Transportation Commissioners, a revised plan aimed at reducing the cost of car tags; revisions in state income tax laws; conservation and environmental protection laws; bills dealing with classroom violence; development of a statewide telecommunications plan; revisions in the workers' compensation system; lobbying laws; term limits for elected officials; privatizing child support enforcement; and allocation of state funds to enhance local law enforcement officers' salaries.

If anyone has any questions or comments, please feel free to contact me. I can be reached at 467-6515 or P.O. Box 128, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521. During the session my Jackson telephone and mailing address is 359-3326 and P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Float riders should throw with caution

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to ask all parents who have children who ride on parade floats to start to teach them when they are young the do's and don'ts of float riding and throwing.

We forget that throwing from floats is prohibited in most areas of the country because of the dangers to the viewing public.

My wife was hit in the face during the Red Ribbon Christmas parade as she was watching from the front of our shop.

We later learned that a young boy was also struck in the face and a woman around the corner was struck in the head by an object thrown from one of the floats.

We love the parade, we love the floats, we love the throwing; however, we must teach children when they are young the proper way to ride in a parade.

Let the good times roll — with caution!

Shortcuts make this holiday meal a snap to prepare

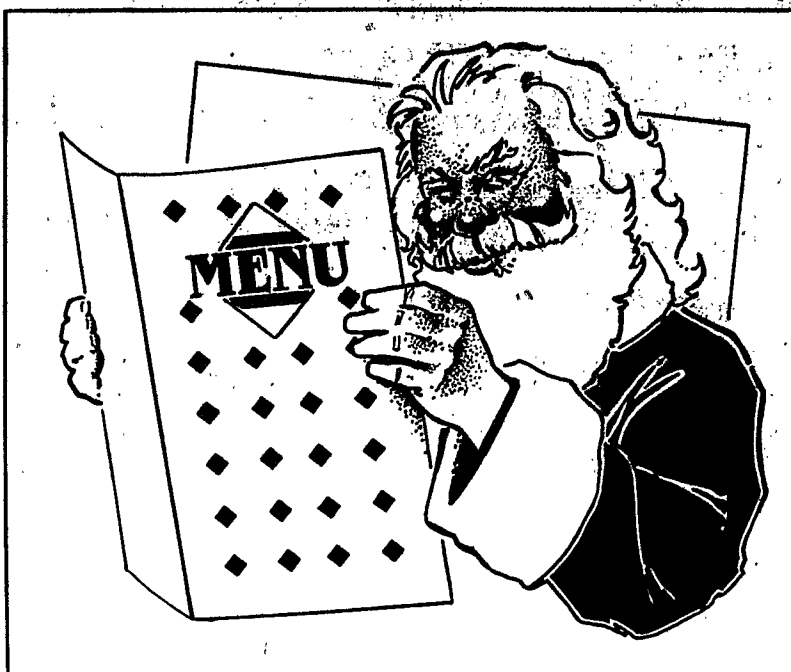

When it's your turn to host the holiday meal, of course you want it to be wonderful and special, and elegantly served — a tough order when you're busy and time is at a premium.

It is possible to entertain elegantly and easily, if you know a few "tricks." For the main course, versatile beef is an appropriate choice because it can be prepared in a variety of ways.

Instead of a roast this year, consider a thick-cut beef top sirloin steak, an economical, lean, flavorful cut that can be prepared in about one hour. Oven-roasted and brushed with easy, irresistible Mustard Maple Glaze, it will yield eight generous holiday servings. If the guest list is larger than eight, just double the recipe and prepare two steaks (but keep the cooking time the same).

Fruited Wild Rice with Pecans is a delicious accompaniment, made with convenient packaged long-grain and wild rice mix. For the holiday meal, the mix is "dressed up" with the addition of apple cider, chopped apples, raisins and toasted walnuts. Steamed green beans round out the menu.

If you've never roasted a thick-cut steak before, it's simple. Treat it just as you would a roast — place the sirloin on a rack in a shallow roasting pan without any water and cook uncovered at 350°.

The mustard-maple syrup mixture is brushed on at the end of cooking, then broiled to give the beef a tangy glaze. Allow the sirloin to rest about 10 minutes before carving to retain the tasty juices and make carving easier.

While the beef rests, stir the apples and nuts into the rice mixture, and check on the green beans.

Pick up assorted crusty rolls from the bakery and a special dessert, too, if you don't have time to prepare one yourself. It's a promise — the meal will be delicious, and guests will think you spent hours preparing it.

ROASTED SIRLOIN WITH MUSTARD-MAPLE GLAZE

3-pound boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 2 inches thick
Salt as desired
Mustard-Maple Glaze:
1/4 cup maple syrup

3 tablespoons coarse-grain Dijon-style mustard
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Heat oven to 350°. Place beef steak on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part, not resting in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 350° oven 50 to 60 minutes for rare to medium doneness.

Meanwhile in 1-cup glass measure, combine glaze ingredients. Microwave on HIGH 3 1/2 to 5 minutes or until thickened, stirring halfway. (Glaze will be very hot.) Set aside.

About 5 minutes before steak is done, remove from oven to apply glaze. Brush top and sides of steak with glaze. Change oven setting to broil. Return steak to oven; broil 3 to 4 inches from heat 4 to 5 minutes until meat thermometer registers

135° for rare, 155° for medium. Let steak stand 10 minutes. (Thick-cut steaks will continue to rise about 5° in temperature to 140° for rare, 160° for medium.)

Trim fat from steak. Carve steak crosswise into slices. Season with salt, as desired.
Makes 8 servings

Cook's Tip: Before heating oven, adjust rack so that surface of meat will be 3 to 4 inches from the broiler unit. Roast steak in oven at this level so steak will be at the correct distance from heat for broiling.

FRUITED WILD RICE WITH PECANS

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 package (6 ounces) original flavor long grain and wild rice mix
1 1/4 cups water

2/3 cup apple cider or juice
1 large apple, chopped
1/4 cup raisins
1/4 cup coarsely chopped pecans, toasted

In medium saucepan, heat butter over medium-high heat until melted. Add onion; cook and stir 2 or 3 minutes or until crisp-tender. Stir in rice, seasoning packet, water and apple cider. Bring to a boil; reduce heat to medium-low. Cover tightly and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until rice is tender.

Stir apple and raisins into rice mixture. Cover; continue cooking 5 minutes or until liquid is absorbed. Stir in pecans.

Cook's Tip: Recipe may be doubled; cook in 3-quart saucepan.

To toast pecans, spread in single layer on 15 x 10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake in 325° oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned.

Ambrosia — the 'nectar of the gods'

Ambrosia, according to Greek and Roman mythology, was the "nectar of the gods," making immortal those who ate it!

And, even today, in the Southland's food mythology, ambrosia shares honors with the Christmas tree and its legends.

In fact, ambrosia is such a symbol that its origin is somewhat obscured, but there's no shortage of discussions and differences of opinion as to the ingredients necessary for the making of this traditional Christmas dessert of the Old South.

Purists contend that only orange sections and coconut, grated or flaked, can be used. Other versions call for various additions.

At any rate, ambrosia is still, to many, just as much a symbol of Christmas in the South as the Christmas tree and the Holly wreath. Among my earliest memories of Christmas dinner is the crystal bowl heaped high with its heavenly mixture.

My grandmothers added green grapes to their ambrosia, along with cherries, making a colorful as well as a flavorful combination.

There are, of course, many versions of this dish, with the more adventuresome adding pineapple, sliced bananas, chopped nuts and what have you. I know one cook who pours a bottle of chilled gingerale over the Ambrosia mixture just before she serves it.

You scarcely need an exact recipe for Ambrosia, but here's:

AMBROSIA

Peel several large oranges, taking care to remove the outer membrane, and divide into slices or sections. Layer in a large, clear glass bowl; sprinkle with powdered (confectioner's) sugar, then add a layer of flaked or shredded coconut. (You'll need a cup of moist coconut, fresh or canned).

Sprinkle with a little orange juice; then start all over again with a layer of the oranges, sugar, coconut and juice. And, again if you've oranges left, and enough space in the bowl. Cover, and refrigerate for at least several hours before serving.

You may wish to add a handful or so of green grapes and a can of pineapple chunks (as well as a couple of sliced bananas at the last minute) — but the orange and coconut remain the base.

CONSUMER UPDATE

Research shows planning can reduce financial arguments

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer Money
Management Specialist

Disagreements over finances are a primary reason for divorce. Over one-half of all married couples argue over money. Research on the conditions surrounding financial arguments may help families reduce disagreements and resolve disputes.

A 1993 study conducted on 805 Louisiana residents found that couples who set goals, saved regularly and kept detailed financial records were far less likely to argue over finances.

This is not the first linking of financial management strategies to marital harmony. A variety of other studies list tasks such as goal-setting, budgeting and preparing financial statements as keys to financial harmony.

"Such couples, it appears, are willing to communicate about money-related decisions and to compromise when there are differences. Such communication quite possibly helps partners feel they have equal control over the way money is spent—a condition that leads to more tranquil relationships," say researchers P. Blumstein and P. W. Schwartz.

Couples who set financial goals together are more likely to be in agreement about how money is spent. Those who keep records are more aware of their financial position and better at making decisions. As a result, the financial position of the family improves. Far too many families come to the money management center with unrealistic expectations of their financial capabilities.

The 1993 study and a previous study in 1986 indicate the older a couple is, the less they argue about money. The reason for this correlation seems to be that compromises are worked out over the years resulting in less conflict.

Young couples should begin early working through communication difficulties and compromises in order to avoid the damage that financial arguments can cause to a marriage.

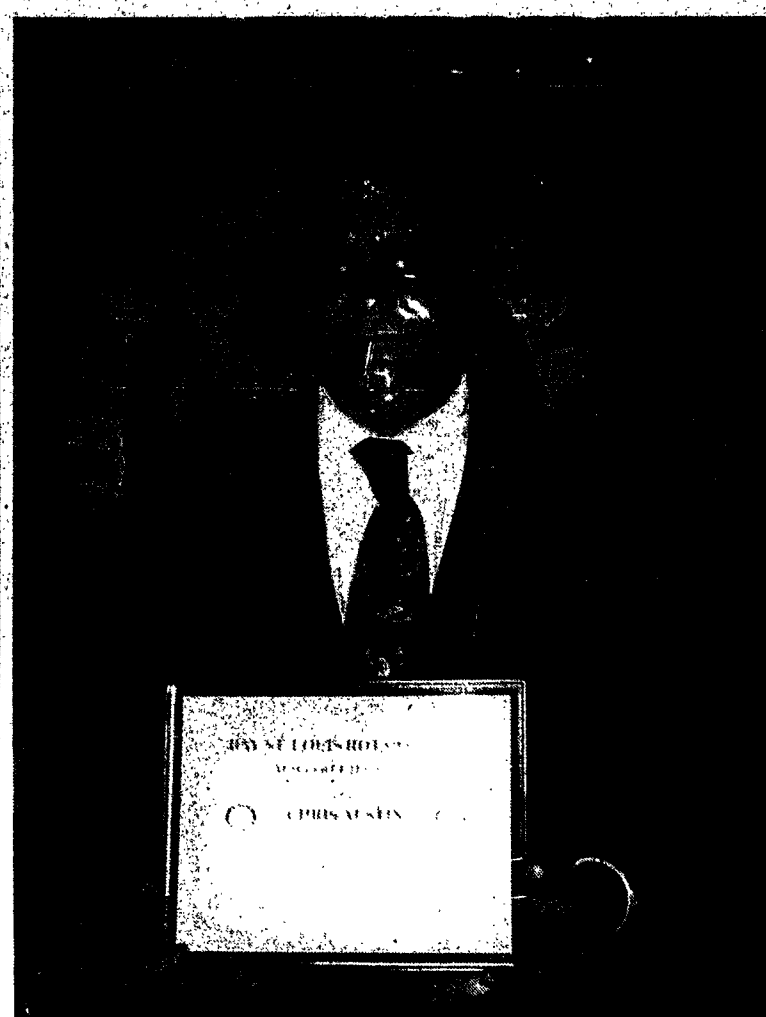

Contrary to popular belief, the amount of family income in this study was found to be unrelated to financial arguments. As is often true of families on the Mississippi coast, more income simply means a more complicated financial situation and higher expenses. In some cases, this can mean more reasons to argue.

The financial management strategies that are most likely to be associated with arguments are tactics such as delaying medical and dental visits and car repairs, do-it-yourself techniques such as auto and household repairs, and cutting clothing dollars.

Many of these strategies can be indicative of current financial stresses. They can also represent the deprivation families feel when forced to cut on essentials.

Do-it-yourself techniques may add other time constraints and fatigue to the financial strain. Though they may be necessary in many instances, they should be accompanied with planning and record keeping to ensure the best use of all resources.

Thanks to frequent communication and planning related to our finances, I can't remember any financial arguments in our family. However, I'm now in search of a study on ending arguments over the household chores.

Mobile MRI equipment for HMC approved by state

State Health Officer Dr. Ed Thompson announced action on 11 Certificate Of Need (CON) requests at the monthly meeting November 30.

Dr. Thompson approved seven requests, totaling more than $26 million in health care improvements for Mississippi.

Section 41-7-191, Mississippi Code of 1972, details health facilities activities which require a CON. The State Legislature in its 1986 session directed that the CON authority become the responsibility of the State Health Officer.

CON approval allows a health facility to enter into a financial arrangement or commitment for financing a new institution or health service. Mississippi law requires a CON for a relocation of services, capital expenditure in excess of $1 million, or any of 13 designated services such as cardiac care or radiation treatment.

The CON process is designed to cut unnecessary duplication of services and cost-barriers to health care. Health facilities are responsible for obtaining funds to carry out all approved capital expenditures.

Dr. Thompson approved the application of Mobile Technology, Inc. (MTI), Los Angeles, California to provide mobile MRI equipment to Hancock Medical Center, Bay St. Louis; capital expenditure, $1,880,000.

Two Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) researchers were presented the Navy Award of Merit for Group Achievement by Captain Paul G. Gaffney, II, NRL's Commanding Officer.

Electronics technician Daniel F. Fraley and geophysicist William E. Avera of NRL's Mapping, Charting and Geodesy Section at Stennis Space Center, were responsible for the data acquisition and display system components for the Magnetic Array System (MARS) project, a five-year, $10-million cooperative research and development effort with the Norwegian Defence Research Establishment (NDRE).

MARS, a high-performance three-axis fiber optic vector magnetometer system demonstrates the use of optical fiber magnetic sensor technology for port and harbor defense systems. The fiber optic sensor technology used in the array was developed by NRL's Optical Sciences Division in Washington, D.C.

Fraley designed the system, procured the component, integrated the system and developed the interface software for acquiring and storing 38 channels of magnetometer array data. In addition, he was responsible for modifications to the system after the first field test to allow the data acquisition system to be used to control the operation of the magnetometer array.

Avera, the NRL SSC program manager for MARS, had overall responsibility for delivering the MARS Data Acquisition System (DAS) and served as technical liaison on the MARS project between NRL Washington and NRL SSC. He performed the final evaluation of the MARS DAS prior to delivery to NRL Washington.

provided highly valuable assistance with the development and testing of the MARS DAS unit.

"The system was deployed in June 1993 off the coast of Norway and represents a significant step forward in the application of fiber optic sensor technology," remarked Capt. Gaffney.

"Although the Cold War is over, the concern over protecting coastal areas is stronger now than ever before. The data collected by the MARS array will make a significant contribution to our understanding of electromagnetic activity in the shallow water environment, and of our ability to protect that environment."

The MARS system will operate undersea for one year. During that time the system will collect and analyze environmental noise data and information on passing ship traffic. Analysis of the data will be used to evaluate the operational characteristics of future magnetic array systems.

According to J. F. Weller, Head of NRL's Optical Techniques Branch, potential non-Department of Defense uses of a fiber optic magnetometer system include drug interdiction and anti-terrorism detection systems, and monitoring systems for Intelligent Vehicle Management Systems being developed by the Federal Highway Administration.

Christmas giving

Sometimes the best presents cannot be wrapped

Families who get wrapped up in themselves at Christmas-time may be missing the most enjoyable part of the season — giving to others.

While all parents want their children to appreciate the joy of giving, instilling that virtue in children calls for more than just good intentions, suggests Dr. Anne Bomba, assistant professor of home economics at The University of Mississippi.

"The idea of giving is really important only to those who value it enough to do it," she said.

Reaching out to the needy, sick, shut-ins and elderly, as well as tending nature or taking a stand to better the environment, are all ways to turn thoughts into action.

It's a matter of getting back to the basics," neighborly things we used to do without thinking about it," Bomba said, adding that the most important way for children to learn is modeling after adults.

Director of the Willie Price Nursery School at Ole Miss, Bomba offers the following suggestions for families to begin traditions of giving to others during the holidays:

- Adopt a family or an individual through a service organization, church, nursing home or an "angel tree" project at a mall. Consider practical gifts like clothing and personal care items to impress upon your children that some people lack the basic necessities of life that others take for granted.
- Invite a foreign student or other person without loved ones close by to join your family for a special holiday dinner. "Christmas is an especially lonely time of the year if family members are far away," said Bomba.

- Offer an elderly or disabled friend or neighbor a few hours of time to help decorate for the holidays, with the promise of returning afterwards to dismantle and store the decorations.

"I'm sure many elderly people have treasured decorations packed away but don't use them anymore because they're afraid to climb," said the Ole Miss professor.

- Encourage children to save enough money from their allowances to purchase a small gift for a needy child. Explain to them that many children don't have their own spending money. "It will also help them understand that Christmas is expensive and that their wish lists are often much too long."

- Offer a smile to those you meet. "Go out of your way and make an extra effort to smile at people; Christmas is a real stressful time," she said.

- Consider the needs of small animals and birds. Especially during inclement weather, feathered and furry friends depend on people for food.

"Children will enjoy doing things as simple as spreading a pine cone with peanut butter, rolling it in bird seed and hanging it in a tree to treat the birds," said Bomba.

- Lend the environment a hand by picking up trash in the neighborhood. This is one way of giving to the community.

Holiday attire

Tips for accessorizing your wardrobe for festive occasions

With the arrival of the holiday season, friends and family will be gathering to share in Christmas and New Year's festivities. As each year passes, styles of clothes change, leaving many wondering what on earth to wear to "deck the halls."

Kecia Long, director of the Modeling Board in The University of Mississippi's Department of Home Economics, offers some suggestions for women who want to look their best for yuletide celebrations:

- Black is always a safe bet. For those who will be attending casual Christmas events, consider wearing pants.

"Everyone should have a pair of basic black pants," said Long. Sticking to the holiday colors to complement the pants is not the rule of thumb this year.

Any festive colored blouse, sweater or jacket is a good look with black pants. Also, one can never go wrong with a silk blouse and an interesting belt.

- Traditional velvet charms 'em every time. For dressier occasions when pants just don't seem to fit the style, Long suggests the traditional velvet suit or a velvet skirt with a beaded top.

If you're wanting to jazz up the traditional velvet, go for the crushed velvet look that's back in style from the 1960s.

- Don't let your budget dampen your hopes of looking your best this year. First of all, Long advises party goers not to panic. Look through your closet for a plain wool suit and put a bit of sparkle into it. For example, replace the old buttons with new flashy rhinestone or pearl buttons. You don't have to spend a lot of money to look good.

Another suggestion is to add one of the new vests to your wardrobe. "Vests are the big thing this year," said the Ole Miss Modeling Board director. "No matter what your body size, almost everyone looks stylish in a vest." Buttoned up or worn open with a blouse, vests can change the whole appearance of any outfit.

- Think Dressy for New Year's Eve. For the big New Year's party, Long again predicts a lot of velvet being worn. Whether it's pants, skirts, vests or dresses, velvet is the fabric to be wearing this season.

To accessorize your outfit, go retro, such as the ribbon chokers with broaches. If you choose to wear rhinestones, mix them with colored stones to match your outfit. "When you combine the rhinestones with a colored stone, the look is much classier and has a better effect than plain rhinestones," said Long.

- If you're scared of a fashion faux pas, relax. According to Long, there will be no "no-no's." "A lot of people will wear the retro look. We've been that

Drinking alcohol could damage holiday spirits

By Linda Moore
MSU Ag Communications

Think twice before celebrating the holidays with alcohol. Even in moderation, alcohol could damage the body more than most people realize.

Dr. Barbara McLaurin, extension human nutrition specialist at Mississippi State University, said several groups of people should not drink alcohol at all.

These groups include anyone planning to drive or engage in a skill-related activity, anyone using medication, or those who cannot drink in moderation. Alcohol can remain in the blood for three to five hours even after moderate drinking.

Another major group that should avoid alcohol is any woman who is pregnant or trying to conceive.

"No safe level has been established for pregnant women. As few as one to two drinks a day has been associated with harmful effects on a developing fetus," McLaurin said. "Dam-

Historical society officers

The Hancock County Historical Society installed officers for 1994 at a Dec. 16 luncheon at the Kate Lobrano house. Officers, including those elected last year with another year left on their term are: Charles H. Gray, president; Lois Abrams, first vice-president; Patt Cucullu, second vice-president; Larry Timmerman, second vice-president; Evie Gordon, secretary; Lois Griffin, secretary; Meg Hilliker, treasurer; Historian, Margaret Burns; Edith Back, publicity; Marlene Johnson, membership.

Library branches close next week

All three branches of the Hancock County Library System will be closed Friday, Saturday and Monday, Dec. 24, 25 and 27 for Christmas.

There will be no children's story hours Wednesday, Dec. 22 at the City-County Library or Friday, Dec. 24 at the Waveland or Kiln libraries.

Patrons wishing to return books during this time are asked to use the book drop at the branch nearest them. At the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis, the book drop is located on Ulman Avenue in the rear of the library.

Drinking

ages are likely to occur during the first three months of pregnancy, sometimes before the woman knows she is pregnant."

The most recent U.S. Department of Agriculture dietary guidelines do not recommend the use of alcohol, but recommend moderation for those who do drink alcohol.

Moderation is defined as not more than one drink a day for women and not more than two drinks daily for men. A drink is one 12-ounce regular beer, or 5 ounces of wine or 1.5 ounces of distilled spirits (80 proof).

"Because women are generally smaller, they tend to be less able to tolerate alcohol than men," McLaurin said. "Lighter people have less fluid volume to dilute the alcohol resulting in a higher blood alcohol concentration."

The nutritionist said a study in the New England Journal of Medicine showed that women absorb more alcohol than men even when weights are equal.

One major reason to limit alcohol consumption is the high concentration of calories in drinks. McLaurin said alcohol has almost as many calories as fat.

"Avoiding or decreasing alcohol intake is a good way to cut calories," she said.

Chronic use of alcohol suppresses the appetite, thus interfering with the consumption of nutrients.

"Research indicates many drinkers get 10 percent or more of their total calories from alcohol," McLaurin said. "Heavy drinking can lead to malnutrition because these drinkers do not eat as much or may skip meals."

If maintaining good health is not incentive enough to avoid celebrating the holidays with alcohol, then consideration of individual life and the lives of others should be incentive to avoid driving under the influence.

BPD cheerleaders

I want

"My name is Matt, Santa, and I want a popgun for Christmas, while Shane requests a small slingshot." Matt Karl, left, is a criminal investigator for the Hancock County Sheriff's office, while Shane Corr is a Bay St. Louis investigator. The duo talked to Santa during pre-game practice seeking a victory for their respective team too in the annual Merry Christmas Charity Flag football game held last Saturday.

From left are Glenn Grice, Corky Hoda, Ramond Karl, Norman Willette, Shane Corr and J.J. Roberts. Bay Police stunned the Sheriff's Department in a fourth quarter surge that led to a 32-25 score. BPD now leads the series 2-1.

Coronation Ball depicts 'An Old-Fashioned Christmas'

Special to the Echo
The Krewe of Diamondhead held its 19th annual Coronation Ball Saturday, Dec. 4 at the Diamondhead Days Inn with the theme of "An Old-Fashioned Christmas."

The evening began with the official blowing of the whistle by the captain. Master of ceremony and president, Stan Robert, welcomed members and guests.

Trumpets heralded the entrance of the captain, Benny Mistretta, who promenaded around the floor to carnival music.

The members of the 1994 royal court were introduced and entered the ballroom while the band played an assortment of Christmas tunes.

Serving as dukes and maids are William Nobile and Velma Mistretta, James Kasper and Muriel McCoy, Joseph Bourgeois and Gretchen Bourgeois, and Berlon Dennis and Janet Snemyr.

Each maid was attired in a velvet ballgown, and the dukes wore tuxedos with the baldric in the matching color of the maid's dress.

The 1993 royalty, King Ali'i Honua XVIII Paul Snemyr and Queen Gisela Rainey, entered to the tune of "Circus, Circus," last year's theme.

The 1994 royal couple entered to the tune of "I am Dreaming of a White Christmas." King Ali'i Honua XIX William Bahner wore white formal tails with an emerald green tie and baldric.

Queen Billie Bahner wore an emerald green velvet ball gown of her own design in the Colonial fashion period. Embellishing the neckline and the wrists were gold sequins in various designs. A big bow accented the back of the dress.

The first dance was led by the royal couple to the tune of "I Could Have Danced All Night" from the Broadway hit "My Fair Lady." This was in accord with the theme of this year's Mardi Gras parade, "Diamondhead Salutes Broadway."

Music was provided by "Take Five" for the coronation ceremony and for the dinner-dance that followed.

The head table was decorated with Christmas greenery and red silk poinsettias. Two Christmas trains were placed in front of the king and queen. Behind the table, Santa stockings were hung for each member of the royal court.

The other tables had miniature decorated Christmas trees topped by a Mardi Gras crown which were set on a red velvet ribbon. The table numbers were on top of gold Christmas balls decorated with plaid ribbon.

Throughout the room were red poinsettias, wreaths, bows and garlands.

The decoration committee consisted of Nell Dennis, Sue Jerome, Betty Reddock and Nina Cotton.

The officers of the Krewe of Diamondhead are: captain, Mistretta; president, Robert; treasurer, Jerry Bourg; secretary, Nell Dennis; parade lieutenant, Chris Arnos; publicity lieutenant, Hilda Bourg; social lieutenant, Henry Burhardt; and ways and means lieutenant, Henry Kibler.

Past Krewe of Diamondhead kings and queens who were present were 1976 King Joe Salvatore; 1980 Queen Lee Fredian; 1983 Queen Hilda L. Bourg; 1984 Queen Lorraine Heier; 1985 King Vincent Almerico Sr. and Queen Ann Neff; 1986 King Clifford Satterlee and Queen Laura Almerico; 1987 King Stan Robert and Queen Maea-lis Swartzendruber; 1988 King Charles Johnson Sr. and Queen Elizabeth Claggett; 1989 King Herb Larson and Queen Dot Hoskins; 1990 King Ronald Bankston and Queen Linn Godard; 1991 King Ted Godard and Queen Evelyn Kibler; and 1992 King Jerry Reshev and Queen Gertrude Carey.

On Saturday morning, the Bahners hosted a brunch for the officers and special guests. At this time, Captain Mistretta presented the royal flags to the Bahners. The flags will be flown throughout the carnival season signifying their royalty.

The Mardi Gras Ball will be held on Saturday, January 29 at the Diamondhead Country Club, and the parade will begin at 1 p.m. on Saturday, February 12, with the theme of "Diamondhead Salutes Broadway."

COMMUNITY SERVICES

Adult Literacy Education

Classes for adults who want to learn to read and write are available through the Hancock County Library System. The program is open free to any adult, age 16 and above, who wants to prepare for the GED high school equivalency exams or improve their basic skills for employment.

Classes are being offered in basic skills — mathematics, writing, reading, critical thinking, computer literacy — at the Literacy location in the Waveland Library, 333 Coleman Avenue.

Call Donna Hutchings, Hancock County Literacy coordinator at 467-9240 for information. Persons who wish to volunteer as literacy tutors to teach adults to read are also encouraged to call.

The Hancock County Literacy Program, sponsored by the Hancock County Library System, is funded through a Jobs Partnership Training Act (JPTA) grant and matching library system funds.

Al-Anon/BSL

Al-Anon, Bay St. Louis chapter, meets Monday and Friday at 8 p.m. and Tuesday at 11 a.m. at 300 Third Street, Bay St. Louis.

Al-Anon is designed for families and friends who are affected by someone else's drinking. For information, call 466-5780.

American Cancer Society

Assistance to victims of cancer is available through Hancock and Harrison county chapters of the American Cancer Society.

Necessary items for patients, such as dressings, ostomy and sick-room supplies are available to those in need. Equipment which may be loaned to patients includes wheelchairs and hospital beds. Assistance is available for transportation to qualifying hospitals.

Several rehabilitation programs are offered, including "Reach To Recovery", in which volunteers who have had mastectomies visit new breast cancer patients (with approval of physician) to assist in emotional, physical and psychological rehabilitation. A support group for breast cancer patients, as well as other types of cancer, meets the second Tuesday of each month at the Hancock Medical Center class room at 7 a.m.

Support programs are also available to ostomy and laryngectomy patients.

American Cancer Society service requests in the Hancock County area may be directed to service and rehabilitation chairman Deeta Ellzey, 255-4338.

GED Classes

Anyone interested in preparing for the GED will find help and free instruction at Hancock High School.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Advertorial

Images Hair Salon and gift shop

Images Hair Salon is a full service hair salon and gift shop. The salon is decorated in a modern, sophisticated style. The gift shop is filled with the new gift shop, including Christmas cards and gifts.

Images offers cuts and perms for the whole family. All services are also available.

Owner and master stylist Jo Ann Hille, who has won many awards and ribbons for hair styling, is the shop's decorator. Hille is a singer, a musician, and a member of the band herself. Hille is a singer with "Expressions."

Hille is accompanied by Jean Feuerstein, a hair styling professional. Feuerstein is also studying to be a master stylist. Gayla Sones, a stylist who trained under "Miss Hair America" Judy Marks and award-winning hair instructor Chuck Snell is also working on a master's.

A master stylist is always continuing her education through courses to keep up with the latest in cuts and design. "We love to cater to kids," Hille said.

There is a special truck-type chair for children to watch cartoons in as their hair is being cut. Children also receive a prize when they get their hair cut.

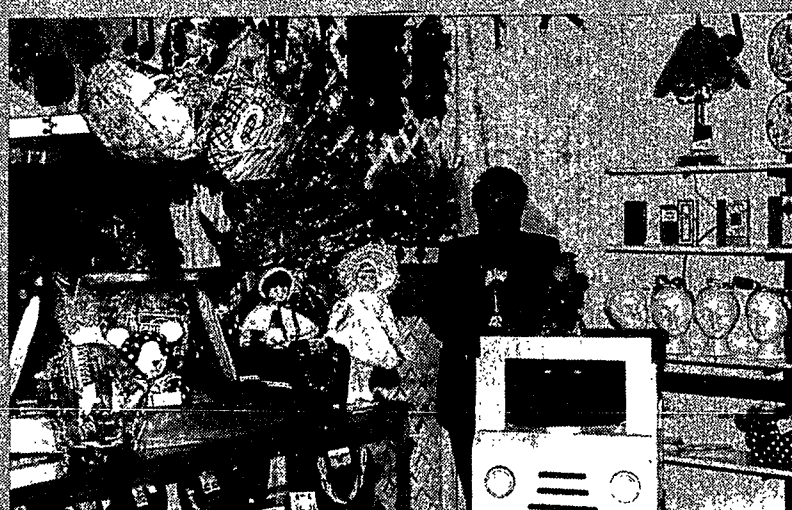

The new gift shop carries unusual and practical gifts, including Ying Yang jewelry, costume jewelry, cologne for men and women, limited edition dolls from The Broadway Collection and decorative clocks, just to name a few.

Gift baskets for children and baskets filled with hair products for men and women are also available. They carry Nexus, Matrix and Paul Mitchell and other popular lines of hairstyling tools.

The staff of pros at Images can give you the latest looks and styles. Hille's long list of satisfied customers include well-known entertainer Sylvia Johns, tennis pro Margaret Lovick-Spinks and police investigator David Sellier.

Hille said that all policemen receive a discount at Images. Join the Image Hair Club and receive discounts and specials year-round. Also during special times, spin the prize wheel for additional prizes.

Images Hair Salon is located at 822-C Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis. Call 467-7608 for more information. Friendly receptionist and gift shop operator Mary Cady will be happy to schedule your appointment.

Medical Rehab Consultants work as a liaison in workman's comp cases

Since 1987, Elaine Stillwell and the staff at Medical Rehab Consultants, Inc., have worked as a liaison in workman's compensation cases to ensure health care cost control and disability management.

They serve as a liaison between the injured worker and the employer with the goal of getting the out-of-work individual back to work.

They also use their expertise to review cases and pre-certify for in-patient hospitalization and out-patient services.

"We make sure there aren't any unnecessary costs or unnecessary time off work," Stillwell said.

Originally located out of Metairie, La., they have been in Bay St. Louis since August, and serve Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama.

Stillwell, a registered nurse, is assisted by a staff of four nurses who review cases for management and utilization.

The consulting firm focuses on self-insured businesses and insurance carriers. They take referrals from insurance companies concerning workman's compensation cases. They also watch costs for self-insured employers and deal with insurance companies for utilization review.

Stillwell said Mississippi just enacted a law that has been in effect in Louisiana requiring a review and recommendation of medical treatments to make sure treatment and charges are appropriate.

The professionals at Medical Rehab work with state and federal compensation cases and some liability cases to ensure fee schedule compliance.

Stillwell said most people are not aware mandatory state compliance laws are in effect.

For additional information regarding Medical Rehab services, call Stillwell at 467-4430.
